Judge Blair Says Alvan Moor Has Nothing Coming For Collecting City's Taxes.

SUSTAINS CITY'S DEMURRER

Contends Father is Not Liable For Acts of Son in Wilson-Fraze Case.

Two cases of general interest, one especially so as it had to do with the pay due a county treasurer for services rendered the city in collecting the city taxes, were dealt a body blow by Judge Blair in the circuit court today when he sustained a demurrer in each.

Much interest is attached to the case of Alvan Moor, former county treasurer, against the city of Rushville for $450. Mr. Moor demanded that much salary from the city in return for the collection of the city taxes while he acted in the capacity of county treasurer. It will be recalled that he put in his claim to the city council for the salary which had always been allotted the county treasurer for his work, and the council refused to pay the sum, alleging that it was a part of the county treasurer's duty.

After the city council steadfastly refused to allow the claim, the former county council brought suit on December 22, 1911. In the February term of court the city filed a motion to strike out parts of the complaint, and the court sustained the motion. A demurrer was filed by the city last term of court and today it was sustained by Judge Blair, with exceptions to the plaintiff.

This practically ends the case in this court. Judge Blair's contention in sustaining the demurrer was that the complaint was not sufficient, and further that there was no statute at the time Alvan Moor collected the city taxes, as county treasurer, to provide for special payment for the work, although there had been such a statute before and after the time Mr. Moor acted in that capacity for the city.

Watson, Titsworth & Green represented Mr. Moor and the city attorney Howard Barrett, represented the city. Attorneys for the former treasurer hinted that the case might be appealed to a higher court. It is said that the field examiners under the State Board of Accounts held that Mr. Moor was entitled to the claim from the city.

Judge Blair today sustained a demurrer for the defendant in the case of Frank Wilson against Edward A. Fraze, and Edward Fraze, father and son, of Orange, for twelve hundred dollars damages. The plaintiff asked and was granted leave by the court to amend the complaint.

Judge Blair held, in sustaining the demurrer of the Frazees that the father could not be held liable for his son's act. Frank Wilson made the father a party to the suit, when it was the son who was driving the automobile which ran into Frank Wilson's horse while it was being driven by George Weeks. The automobile was the property of the father.

The accident happened, it will be recalled on the Main street hill last Hallowe'en night. The plaintiff alleged that Fraze was driving on the wrong side of the street, that the horse's fright rendered it unsafe for driving purposes, that it was badly injured so that it is no longer a good prospect for racing, and that the buggy was damaged. Watson, Titsworth & Green are attorneys for the Frazees and Smith, Camborn & Smith of this city and Chauncey Duncan of

I. & C LOSS WAS INSURED

Fairland Wreck Not as Costly as at First Stated.

The loss sustained by the I. & C. traction company Wednesday night in the wreck at Fairland in which two freight cars and one passenger car burned, will not be as heavy as first reported. The damage, according to claim agent, Will M. Fraze, is fully covered with insurance. The three cars and equipment were insured against fire and the loss, while quite heavy, will not amount to the large sum first stated.

FALL PLOWING IS ABOUT COMPLETED

Abundance of Moisture Makes Work Easy and Increases The Wheat Acreage.

DESPITE FAILURE THIS YEAR

The abundant rains of the middle and latter part of the summer have had a two-fold effect for good on Rush county farms. First and most apparent was their effect on the corn.

Another effect of the rains came in the shape of a fine preparation of the soil for fall plowing. Many hundreds of acres of land in the county are plowed for wheat already. In fact the chief part of that work is done. It was done, however, with less strain on teams and men than it often calls for, and this very fact is supposed to have, to some extent at least, increased the acreage.

It has often been pointed out that, about harvest time, if the wheat is poor, as it was this year, or indifferent, as it frequently has been in recent years, farmers may be heard to complain, and to say with some vehemence that they will sow any wheat next year. Yet next year comes the day when they do sow wheat, and a good deal of it. Such is the case this year. It is also interesting to note that the fall breaking for wheat is practiced more than heretofore, with a corresponding departure from the older plan of sowing the grain, with one-horse drills, between the rows of the corn.

HIT BY MACHINE; ESCAPES INJURY

ACCIDENT IS UNAVOIDABLE

Harrison Martin, an aged farmer, was hit by an automobile driven by Walter Briedenstein of the Norris garage this afternoon, but escaped injury. The accident occurred in front of the Miller Law Building in East Second street and attracted a large crowd of people who expected to find Mr. Martin badly injured as it appeared the machine had passed over him.

He was crossing the street and failed to see the auto. The front fender hit him and brushed him to one side, preventing the wheels from passing over his body. The automobile was not running fast and the accident was unavoidable. Mr. Martin was slightly stunned, but did not need medical attention.

Prof. Paul M. Pearson Pays Deep Tribute to Rush County Chautauqua in Article.

IN "LYCEUMITE AND TALENT"

Writes Jess Pugh's Was Like Return of Conquerer—Counts Ralph Bingham's Laughs.

The Rush County Chautauqua Association has had many a boost in magazines devoted to the Lyceum stage, but none ever equal to the one given the local assembly in the last issue of "The Lyceumite and Talent" by Prof. Paul M. Pearson, who acted as platform manager here this year and gave course lectures during the week.

Incidentally Prof. Pearson reviews the return of Jesse Pugh and pays a deep tribute to the local man. He takes this occasion to compliment the management of the local chautauqua, especially the talent committee. And he counted the laughs Ralph Bingham got. Think of it! He writes as follows:

It was like the return of a conqueror. With his company—Miss Briggs, soprano and Miss Austin, violinist—Jesse Pugh gave three preludes and one full concert in his own home town chautauqua, Rushville, Indiana. All Rushville came out to hear him, and to see him, too. They came because they are proud of him, because they like him as a man and as an entertainer.

At the full concert given on the second day of his engagement, Jesse Pugh had the distinction of drawing the largest crowd of the chautauqua. Not only were his old neighbors and friends out to hear him, but hundreds came from the surrounding country.

Communities do not thus honor men without merit. The community estimate of a man is seldom amiss. Rushville has known Jesse Pugh as a boy and man for many years. His father and mother still live there, and there he spends his vacation with his wife and boys. Rushville is proud of lyceum success, and it is richly deserved. He sings well, he recites exceptionally well, and most important of all, he makes his audience like him in all he does.

Rushville, Indiana, has a program committee who are the best posted chautauqua fans one will meet in a summer journey. They read the Lyceumite and Talent, they visit neighboring chautauquas. Anna L. Bonhannon, J. B. Meacham, John A. Titsworth, E. B. Thomas, J. H. Scholl are a wise and enthusiastic committee, and the board of directors have the good sense to keep the same people on this important committee.

At Rushville it was announced that if the audience didn't get as many laughs from Ralph Bingham as they had paid cents for the season ticket, they might have rain checks—150 laughs, count 'em. The following is from the official scorebook—fouls, assists the balls not counted, only hits:

Bill and the Mowing Machine, 56; Hot Time in The Old Town, 39; The Cider Mill, 26; Nigger Picnic, 82. Total, 203. No rain checks issued.

TEACHERS TRY NEW PLAN TODAY

Pedagogues Hold Morning Session of First Preliminary Institute in Sections at Court House.

ALWAYS TOGETHER BEFORE

Topics of Interest to Teachers Discussed his Afternoon—Meeting Held in Court Room.

All the townships were represented in the first preliminary teachers institute in the court house today. A new plan was tried today, that of the teachers meeting in sections this morning and coming together for a general meeting this afternoon. Heretofore the whole meeting has been held as a whole. Some of the township schools opened last Monday, and the remainder will open next Monday, with a few exceptions, where new buildings under construction are not completed.

The teachers took possession of the court room this afternoon for the general program. Judge Blair allowing them that privilege while he held court in the court library. The first thing on the program this afternoon was a discussion of the subject, "Plans for bringing patrons and teachers together for co-operative and community work," by L. N. Stanwell, principal at Raleigh; A. M. Taylor, principal of the Milroy schools, and J. L. Shaeck, the Arlington principal.

"Teachers Reading Circle for the year 1912 and 1913" was discussed by Alfred Hall, the Gings principal, and "Young Peoples Reading Circle for the Year 1912 and 1913" was discussed by Miss Ethyl Flint of this city. Prof. C. M. George, county superintendent, talked of the plans for the school year just opened and the report of the program committee was the last thing on the program. The following program was carried out this morning.

COMPANIES WORK UNDER NEW ORDER

Rule of Interstate Commerce Commission Concerning Shipment of Express.

TO AFFORD MORE PROTECTION

A new waybilling and labeling order issued by the interstate commerce commission to the express companies went into effect on September 1 and the three local express companies are now operating under the new order. The intention of the order is to afford greater protection to the patrons of express companies.

The order was issued following an investigation in which it was discovered that often collections were made on packages at their destination which had been prepaid. Under the new order three records are kept of all business done both at the dispatching and receiving ends of the line and different colored recording blanks are being used for "prepaid," "collect" and "C. O. D." business. If a package is sent "prepaid" and reaches its destination "collect," it will be delivered to the person for whom it was intended and no charges will be made on it, but instead the agent who sent the package will be held for the charges.

RETURNS SHOW LIGHT REGISTRY

Local Party Workers Are Well Pleased Over Results of Second Registration.

VERY SMALL VOTE IS NOW OUT

Estimates Place Total of Both Sessions at 90 Per Cent of Total.

The returns from the September registration were rather slow in coming to the office of County Auditor Stone and only about one-half of the precincts have sent in their books. The registration yesterday, as was expected will run about one-half that of the May session.

The new law worked more smoothly yesterday than at the first session due to the fact that the voters were better acquainted with the provisions. The greatest difficulty encountered was with voters, who had moved from one precinct into another, and failed to get certificates from the county auditor. Several are known to have lost the chance to register because of this. Both parties were well pleased over the results obtained at the second session.

The cry of "get the vote registered at the first session" had its results as is shown by the light registration yesterday. It is stated that the vote left for the October meeting will be very small and the principal thing to contend with is the moving from the precincts where they first registered. Both Republican and Democratic county chairmen were well pleased over the results. The exact per cent of the vote now registered is not obtainable but rough estimates place the vote now registered at between 85 and 90 per cent of the total. This includes both parties. According to one estimate only 10 per cent of the vote is still out. Another estimate placed the vote that has not registered in Rushville as 15 per cent and in the out precincts as 10 per cent.

The following gives a comparison between the May and September registrations from precincts that have reported:

MAPPING OUT A
BROAD PROGRAMClapp Committee Promises a Spectacular Inquiry.

SOME STARTLING DISCLOSURES

These Are Expected If Predictions
Based Upon a Knowledge of Sentiment of the Senate Investigators of Campaign Contributions Prove Well
Founded—Morgan, Rockefeller and Gary Among Those to Be Quizzed.

Washington, Sept. 7.—John D. Rockefeller, E. H. Gary of the United States Steel corporation, J. Pierpont Morgan and many others prominent in the financial and industrial world are to be invited to testify before the special committee of which Senator Clapp of Minnesota is chairman, relative to campaign contributions and as to the relations of such men with senators and representatives in congress. If Senator Clapp's associates on the committee approve of the program he is mapping out, the inquiry will doubtless prove to be one of the most spectacular ever conducted by a committee of congress. The committee has been clothed with broad powers. Its activities are not confined to the question of campaign contributions. The committee is empowered to investigate the conduct of members of the house and senate.

Chairman Clapp has interpreted the senate resolution in the broadest possible way. While he is an ardent supporter of Colonel Roosevelt, his friends say the investigation will be conducted without regard to whom it may hit. The prediction is made that the disclosures will in some instances prove startling.

For all practical purposes the inquiry will touch on all political campaign contributions from 1900 to date, as well as the relations of senators and representatives with corporations in the past twelve years.

CHINA'S PROSPERITY

Is Based Upon Principle of Open Door,
Says Dr. Sun.

Peking, Sept. 7.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, in an address to delegates from various public bodies who called on him, urged them to encourage foreign commercial and financial enterprises on the lines of the open door, contending that it would remove diplomatic difficulties and help to strengthen China and make her prosperous.

The 10,000 miners in the Kanawha district laid down their tools against the orders of the leaders of the United Mine Workers. The order of Governor Glasscock placing every man of the state militia in the field is taken to mean that the martial law district is to be extended.

The militia is virtually running the railroads in the martial law districts. Passengers are being searched for weapons.

The Colonel's Progress.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 7.—So far as Colonel Roosevelt's reception here is concerned, it was cordial rather than enthusiastic. At several stations between Grand Forks and Fargo crowds applauded the colonel as he waved his hand at them.

STAMPEDE LED TO NOMINATIONNew York Progressives Taken Off Their Feet.

O. S. STRAUS FOR GOVERNOR

With the Nominations Apparently Closed, an Eloquent Irishman
Proposed Name New York Philanthropist and a Stampede Was Created in Which Prendergast and Hotchkiss
Were Forgotten.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 7.—In a stampede of the progressive state convention late yesterday afternoon, Oscar S. Straus of New York county, President Cleveland's ambassador to Turkey and President Roosevelt's secretary of commerce and labor, was nominated for governor by acclamation. Mr. Straus, as permanent chairman of the convention, was upon the platform at the time the stampede broke loose. It came like a thunder clap to him. The Prendergast and the Hotchkiss forces for five hours had been engaged in an oratorial battle in the effort to bring about the nomination of their favorite. The role of counties in the call for nominating speeches had been completed. Prendergast and Hotchkiss had been formally put in nomination. Secretary Manchester's voice in calling Yates, the last county on the list, had scarcely died away when John C. Magee of New York county rushed upon the platform, merely nodded to Permanent Chairman Straus and, without "by your leave," in a voice worn to almost a whisper by hard campaigning in Vermont, in an impassioned speech nominated Mr. Straus.

Instantly the convention was in an uproar. In a second a stampede was on. Men and women were standing on their seats, waving flags, handkerchiefs. The band boomed out with the Star Spangled Banner and switched to Onward Christian Soldiers, which the audience of about 5,000 joined in singing. Chauncey J. Hamlin, leader of Erie, led the way for a march of the standards of the sixty-one counties around the hall. In his wake marched and howled every county in the state.

Mr. Straus, standing at the chairman's table on the platform, became more than usually pale. Yet he smiled and waved his hands in depression. He seemed to be dazed. The delegates and alternates in their march about the hall switched to cries of "Straus! Straus!" and in turn voices from high soprano to rumbling basso profundo, sang "What's the Matter With Oscar?" "He's all right!"

Ecstasy of Women Delegates.

Amid the tumult Mr. Hotchkiss clambered to the platform and without ceremony grasped Chairman Straus's gavel and took command of the convention. Mr. Straus dropped into his seat, quite overcome by the scene. A score of delegates flocked to the platform and surrounded Mr. Straus, importuning him to let the convention have its way. Meantime the singing and rumbling of the band and the howls and cheers were ascending. The women seemed to be in ecstasy. Mrs. Straus was a delegate from New York county. Nearly all of the 146 women delegates in this convention surrounded her and sang, and not a few removed their hats and waved them in joy. Mrs. Straus was beaming.

Mr. Hotchkiss, upon the platform, planted his hands on Mr. Straus's shoulders and declared he must accept the nomination. Others in the group fairly smothered Mr. Straus with demands that he should not resist the command of the convention. This scene had gone on fifteen minutes, when Mr. Hotchkiss stepped to the front of the platform and flashed a big sheet of paper on which he had scrawled, "He accepts." But the delegates and the alternates and visitors would not take their seats. The knowledge that Mr. Straus would accept the nomination only added to their frenzy. The shouting, howling and singing continued for another ten minutes before order was restored.

The convention soon got in working order again. A motion that Mr. Straus's nomination be made unanimous brought out more cheers and yells and another demonstration. Timothy L. Woodruff then announced that Mr. Prendergast was not in the convention, but he would take the responsibility upon himself to withdraw Mr. Prendergast's name, knowing that Mr. Prendergast would fully and heartily sustain his action. He then asked that Mr. Straus's nomination be made by acclamation, which was carried with a roar.

As Mr. Straus advanced to meet the audience with an impressive speech of acceptance, there was another great storm of approval. The convention then adjourned until 8 o'clock in the evening, when the ticket was completed by the nomination of Frederick M. Davenport of Clinton for lieutenant governor; Dean Alden and Dean Kirchway for associate judges of the court of appeals; secretary of state, Homer Call of Onondaga; state comptroller, General Horatio C. King of Kings; attorney general, John Palmeri of Kings; state treasurer, Ernest Cawcrot of Chautauqua, and state engineer and surveyor, Prof. O. M. Le

Tariff Paramount.

Nobody need be surprised that in the new Republican Campaign Text-book the tariff issue receives lengthy discussion. The tariff has been with us longer than any other question. The first piece of general legislation signed by the first president of the United States dealt with that issue. This was the measure signed by George Washington on July 4, 1789, which recited in its preamble, among other things, that it was intended for the "encouragement and protection of manufacturers." Between the Madison act of 1879 and the Payne law of 1909 Congress spent more time over tariff legislation than it did over any other question. A roster of the names and dates of the various tariff acts of the past century and a fifth would fill a large space in a newspaper or in a campaign hand-book.

Most of the tariff measures which went on the statute book had protection for one of their objects. In general it was the leading object. Except the Clay compromise tariff of 1833, which reduced duties on a steadily declining scale, the Walker act of 1846, the law of 1857, and the Wilson-Gorman measure of 1894, nearly all of the tariffs had protection, directly and avowedly or indirectly, as one of their purposes. Even the act of 1894, as reshaped by Gorman and his coterie of Democrats in the Senate, aided by the Republicans, aimed to give some measure of proof the Democratic congressmen there was no political nutriment in preventive measures against anything. After election would be time enough to deal with impending evils. Appropriations for political purposes had grown so large that, to maintain an appearance of economy until the November elections were passed, appropriations must be cut somewhere. Here was a chance to cut. Instead of the half million only $200,000 was allowed. The public health can take care of itself until after November.

The following from the Indianapolis News best illustrates the attitude of the Democrats in this campaign: Stephen B. Fleming, Democratic state senator, appeared at the statehouse wearing a Bull Moose emblem on the lapel of his coat. Democrats peered from behind desks at him in surprise. Then a volley of questions was shot at him.

"Well? Why not?" questioned Senator Fleming. "The Bull Moose are the best friends we've got. They ought to be boosted for about sixty days yet, I believe. We ought to keep 'em alive for about that long, I'm sure."

"We're keepin' 'em alive up in the Twelfth district. We need 'em up there," he said, pointing to the Bull Moose emblem.

Imports of foreign goods into the United States for August, 1912, amounted to $148,593,903, which is $31,000,000 larger than the imports of August, 1910, when some alarm was expressed that we were destroying the balance of trade. These goods came in under the Payne-Aldrich law which has been represented as erecting a tariff wall about the country that prohibited the people from taking advantage of the markets of the world. We never have bought more abroad than we are buying now. Why?

In an address delivered at Fort Wayne Fred Landis said that for forty years the Republican party has been in league with the special interests. This includes the seven years term of President Roosevelt and the four years service of Mr. Landis in congress. Men who turn State's evidence as Mr. Landis claims he has done, ought not to ask a reward in the form of a new tenure of office. Escape without punishment ought to be enough.

Democratic Economy.

At no time in the history of the country has there been a more legitimate demand for the exercise of the functions of the Federal Public Health Service than in the present year. Bubonic plague is a real menace to our seaports, and consequently to the whole body of the country. This Asiatic disease, deadly in the extreme, has spread to the West Indies. It is easily communicable through shipping. Only by the activities of the Public Health Service can adequate protection be offered.

Several years ago when bubonic plague menaced the Pacific coast the Public Health Service did notable work in checking and preventing an epidemic. Ample funds were then available for the purpose. Now that the plague threatens the Atlantic seaboard, with its enormously greater population, funds are low.

The Democratic house of representatives in view of the situation, and in view of the possible needs should the disease gain a foothold in an Atlantic seaport, was asked for $50,000. This was to cover the cost of the entire service, under ordinary circumstances, as well as to cover the cost of any possible emergency arising out of an appearance of the plague, and also to cover preventive measures. Half a million dollars was all that was needed for all purposes. Surely it was a modest request. It was only one-fourteenth of the increase in the rivers and harbors bill over last year.

And now Debs accuses the Colonel's party of having appropriated not only Socialistic doctrines but even the red emblem of Socialism. It is dangerous for any cult or party to go in swimming around the haunts of the Bull Moose.

NEW OFFICE FOR COUNTY PROPOSED

Bill to Create Highway Commissioner, Defeated in Last Legislature, Will Come up Again.

FOSTERED BY THE AUTOISTS

The bill to create the office of highway commissioner in each county of the State, to have supervision of roads, which failed to pass the last legislature, is to come before the next general assembly.

The measure is being fostered among Indianapolis people, more particularly owners of automobiles who are interested in good roads. The bill as proposed will provide for the appointment in each county of a commissioner to be named without regard to political affiliations. He would co-operate with the county as well as city roadways.

The cost of road improvements, as outlined in a tentative plan, would be paid jointly by the State, county and township, or if part of the roads should lie within a city, the municipality would be obliged to pay its share of the improvement. Benefits also would be assessed against property owners adjoining the improvements.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean calls the Bull Moose the Roose Bolters. There can be no discussion about the plural of that, thank goodness.

United States Senator Geo. Sutherland called Roosevelt "a comet, a wandering tramp of the skies, mostly gas, which will disclose its true character when the hot air comes in contact with the solid body of the Republican party." Gifford Pinchot likened President Taft to a "Balloon with a hole in it." And pretty soon everybody will be up in the air.

An instructor in a teachers' county institute at Tipton asked the women teachers' opinion of woman suffrage. One fair maiden arose and delivered herself of the following:

"We want husbands and homes and babies when we get tired of teaching, and the women without these things, but who ought to have them, are the agitators of this voting idea."

Meaning, of course, that them as has 'em—husbands, babies and homes—don't want no woman suffrage, and them as aint got 'em, wants the right of suffrage for the lack of 'em.

Magazine Agent Pays Fine as Well as Board Bill.

Upon the charge of beating a board bill, owing to Landlord Williams of the Hotel Norwood, Bert Langden, a magazine subscription agent, was taken into custody by the police of Richmond, to which place he had gone from here. Then to satisfy the law Langden was assessed a small fine and sent to jail for ten days. He may consider himself lucky in getting away as easy as he did.

Dr. Earl Jewett of St. Paul Attacks Garry Updike, I. & C. Conductor, But Suffers.

A ROUGH AND TUMBLE SCRAPE

Physician, Maddened by Jealousy, Says Conductor is Too Intimate With His Wife.

Declaring that Garry Updike, a conductor on the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction line had been living in too intimate relations with his wife, Dr. Earl Jewett, a St. Paul physician, attempted Thursday evening at the station yards at Greensburg to carry out threats that he had made earlier in the day to the effect that he would give the conductor a good beating.

The fight began at about seven-thirty o'clock and lasted for about fifteen minutes. When the participants had finally made an end to their fierce engagement, and the dust of the combat cleared away it was found that neither was badly injured.

Updike was the conductor in charge of the car that arrived in Greensburg at seven-thirty o'clock on Thursday evening and from St. Paul to Greensburg carried the man that later attempted to administer to him the beating. Dr. Jewett having boarded the car at St. Paul at that time, tipping some of his friends to the fact that he intended pulling off the pugilistic stunt shortly, and telling them the reason for his having decided upon that particular form of exercise outlined to them.

When the car pulled in at the station Updike as was his usual custom, telephoned the dispatcher and while he was doing this the doctor got off the car and patiently awaited his return. After Updike had finished making his call Dr. Jewett informed him that he desired to converse with him privately and the two men stepped aside from the bystanders.

After a heated discussion of but a few minutes length the doctor landed what came near being a knock out blow on the conductors right jaw. When he struck Updike had something of a notion of what was coming and caught the physician in his arms: not in the poetical "fond embrace" however.

The two men then measured their lengths on the ground together and a "rough and tumble" fight ensued.

The doctor appeared to have a shade the better of the contest all the way through and what saved Updike a worse whipping was the fact that his opponent had been drinking a little.

Quite a large crowd assembled to witness the bout, but no one took the side of either party but were simply letting the two "have it out" to their own satisfaction, if they could secure it without aid. Updike called upon his motorman for help, but none was forthcoming from that quarter. After the scrap had continued for several minutes the station agent finally notified the police of the affair.

The chief went to the scene of battle and parted the men, but arrested neither of them.

While the fight was in progress the conductor kept warning the doctor that the better thing for him to do would be to let him up. The doctor seemed to think he knew better, however, and answered by declaring that he would teach him how to break up his home and added the threat that he would tell Updike's wife. Updike registered the protest that he had not been with Mrs. Jewett.

WHY BE MISERABLE WITH HAY FEVER

A Simple, Safe Remedy Gives Instant
Relief, Even in The Worst Cases.

Thousands of people are miserable two or three months every summer with Hay Fever and Rose Cold. They go around sneezing, blowing the nose and wiping their eyes, and at night they are so choked up they can hardly breathe. There is no need of this. Ely's Cream Balm will relieve all these distressing symptoms in less than five minutes' time.

Hay Fever is due to an over sensitive condition of the membrane lining of the nose and throat. Ely's Cream Balm soothes, heals and strengthens this delicate inside skin, so that you not only get instant relief but are also protected against a return of the trouble.

Don't hesitate because you have been disappointed with other remedies. Get a fifty-cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and if you are not satisfied after a fair trial, get your money back. All druggists sell and recommend it.

He was exasperated with me. He couldn't see that a woman's mind works differently from a man's. He came close to me after a moment, drew me into his arms and placed a very brotherly kiss upon my forehead.

"Women," he said softly, "women are angels."

The worst continued to happen. Just at that particular instant Hap banged on the door and, without waiting, suddenly opened it. It was an awfully awkward situation. There was John with me in his arms—John, who never looked twice at a woman in his life—and I practically engaged to Hap, and Hap looking as if something had exploded just under his nose. I know I went red, and I'm sure I would have done something foolish if John's beautiful self-possession had not saved us. He continued to hold me in his arms.

"Women," he remarked over my shoulder to Hap, "women are angels." Hap blinked.

"You bet they are!" he said. But he was trying to readjust himself. I went to him.

"Don't you see it's Jo, you goose, not me," I whispered. "Get him a drink; he needs it."

"Scotch or rye, John?" Hap asked from pure force of habit."

"Neither," John replied.

"Scotch," I said firmly. "Make it a long one"—I think that's the way to say it, and I illustrated as the men do—"and—put a cherry in it!"

CHAPTER XXV.

The Man at the Bridge.

It's a strange thing that the first definite clue we had to Jo after the slipper and the torn piece of her dressing-gown, came from Charlie Ayer. There had been no demand for ransom on the following morning and we were in despair. Mr. Partridge arrived, but he could only bring me consolation. A rumor that some strange men had been seen at the railroad station came to naught, and finally Charlie had taken the run-about and gone away, no one knew where and had not bothered. He came back late that afternoon, grimy, with two men in the car, one a milk man, the other a stable boy, and held up to the shocked gaze of everybody present Jo's other slipper.

While the detectives John had had

"Yes," admitted Charlie, "I'm a looking for her."

The milkman whistled, then held up two fingers and dexterously extorted between them.

"Well, Bill says he thinks he picked up them three men and the young woman on this here very road about four o'clock in the morning, and drove 'em about two miles. He ain't sure; he don't remember nothing about the dressing-gown, for it was dark and he didn't see it, but he said this morning that it did seem to him as if it must have been them."

A greenback changed hands, and the result was that the milkman agreed to take Charlie to the stable and introduce him to Bill.

Bill's story was that he had driven a couple who had missed the last train up, to a stable that boasted an automobile, and there he had turned back toward home. It was late then, or rather, early—somewhere between half-past three and four. At a point which he did not exactly remember, three men accosted him and asked if they might ride with him. He didn't consider this unusual, because it had happened to him before. The men were supporting a young woman between them. Bill concluded she had had too much. He was paid in advance, a bill which, in the light of a smoky kerosene stable lamp later, turned out to be ten dollars, but that, too, had happened to Bill before when he had given a lift to a "souse."

They rode what Bill judged to be about two miles, and got out at a path evidently leading to a house, just before coming to a small bridge. He remembered the bridge distinctly. They had called "good-night" to him. One of them, he thought, spoke in German. He had ceased to think of the incident until he saw the row the newspapers had kicked up about a young woman having been, presumably, abducted from a place in that vicinity on that very morning. He had hesitated about informing the police, because he didn't want to get mixed up 'bout nothing when he wasn't sure 'bout nothing, and didn't know nobody; and he couldn't be spared from the stable to go to court 'bout nothing.

But when he had been promised full pay for any time lost and a guarantee of his job from the owner of the stable, he consented to accompany Charlie to Lone Oak, if the milkman would go also, and place himself and his information at the disposal of whoever wanted it. He gave Charlie a slipper which he had found in the carriage. It was Jo's.

The terrace became a newspaper office, and at the rustic tables where we usually had tea in the late afternoon reporters were frantically writing.

ing. The photographers snapped Bill and the milkman every time they looked up.

It was quite a procession that went down the driveway to take Bill to the spot near the small bridge where the men and their victim had alighted. Winthrop said he knew the path and the bridge—it was perhaps four miles or more below Lone Oak—and if Jo's abductors had left the carriage there he was certain it was not to follow the path. He knew it led to a little house and a celery farm, owned by an old German couple named Hingelmuller, simple, honest folk who certainly had no hand in an abduction or in concealing any one who had.

But everybody went, just the same, and rather eagerly when it was remembered that Bill said he thought one of the men spoke in German.

The little old couple were astonished at the intrusion, but answered questions straightforwardly, and because Winthrop, who knew them well, requested it, allowed a search of their house and premises. Absolutely no trace of any person was found. The detectives and—more to the point—the newspaper men were finally convinced that the Hingelmullers knew nothing. If it had not been for the slipper, it is probable Bill's story would have been entirely discredited.

The bridge spanned a small brook that ran through the Hingelmullers' celery farm on one side of the road, coming through an estate on the other belonging to a family who had been abroad for three years. This estate was vacant. The house was some distance from the stream, and stood on a knoll that gave a view of the ocean. It was surrounded by weeds and overgrowth.

The detectives decided to inspect this house. A careful search, however, proved conclusively that no one had been near the place. The house was securely shuttered, its shutters and porches thick with dust. There was no indication anywhere of the weeds having been trampled. It was reasonably certain that the house neither was nor had been occupied for some time. But the police took the responsibility of tearing off a shutter and searching. Inside was the same coating of dust, no footprints anywhere, no signs of anything having been disturbed.

The search from that time seemed to stand still. Bill and the milkman were sent back to the stable handsomely rewarded, but the story came to naught, just as everything else had. We were no nearer finding Jo than we had been the morning of her disappearance.

John still expected a demand for ransom, so did Mr. Partridge, who broke two pairs of glasses the morning he came, rubbing them. I had ceased to hope. I nursed my broken arm and cried every time I looked—and I looked often—at Jo's long, slim gowns hanging on their pegs. Just how it happened the newspapers hadn't discovered Jo's connection with Mme. Gautier, Robes et Manneaux, I do not know. It's a fact that all the stories referred to her as Mrs. Hazard's guest, the beautiful Miss Codman. Perhaps it made a better story.

We dragged through Sunday. Winthrop had taken the reporters into his home, for there was no such thing as a hotel near us. We discovered that Sam Dick was an '07, and Sunday evening Mrs. Hazard brought him in to see me—she's soft-hearted about reporters anyhow. He told me he wouldn't print anything I said if I didn't wish it, but he simply had to be able to tell his city editor that he had seen me; that he would like to take a message to the other boys. I told him I'd stand for what he chose to tell them. He's a dandy chap.

Monday morning Mrs. Hazard authorized the newspaper men to say that twenty-five thousand dollars would be paid for Jo returned alive. I didn't have to be told who had offered to pay it.

Monday noon something happened that we could not see had any bearing

BEAUTIFUL HAIR AT SMALL COST

A Simple Remedy Beautifies
the Hair. Cures Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair.

What a pity it is to see so many people with thin, wispy hair, faded or streaked with gray, and realize that most of these people might have soft, glossy, abundant hair of beautiful color and lustre if they would but use the proper treatment. There is no necessity for gray hair under sixty-five years of age, and there is no excuse for anyone, young or old, having thin, straggling hair, either full of dandruff or heavy and rank smelling with excessive oil.

You can bring back the natural color of your hair in a few days and forever rid yourself of any dandruff and loose hairs, and make your hair grow strong and beautiful by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. For generations common garden Sage has been used for restoring and preserving the color of the hair; and Sulphur is recognized by Scalp Specialists as being excellent for treatment of hair and scalp troubles.

If you are troubled with dandruff or itchy scalp, or if your hair is losing its color or coming out, get a fifty cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist, and notice the improvement in the appearance of your hair after a few days' treatment.

$80,000,000 Lost Annually By Wage Earners.

Dr. Sadler estimates that about $80,000,000 in wages is lost annually by the American people as a direct result of colds. Lost time means lost wages and doctoring is expensive. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. It will stop the cough, and heal and sooth the sore and inflamed air passages. F. B. Johnson & Co.

A Passing Automobile Party Had Found an Unconscious Man Beside the Road.

on Jo's disappearance, but which took the newspaper men and photographers to the rustic bridge on the run. A passing automobile party had found an unconscious man beside the road just at the rustic bridge. He had been shot in the throat. How he came there no one knew. He could not speak and no one could identify him. Afterward a trail of blood was found leading into the woods along the stream, but before it had been followed many things had happened.

The wounded man was taken to Dr. Graham's, where it was not thought he could live, as he was terribly exhausted from loss of blood, and he evidently had dragged himself from the place where he had been shot, to the road for assistance.

While we were digesting this new horror, John, who was pacing up and down Mrs. Hazard's sitting room, suddenly gave a short, sharp cry, and the next instant he was tearing madly—tearing madly is exactly what he was doing—down the steps and across the lawn. Coming from the direction of the beach, stumbling, weary, exhausted, was Jo!

INTEREST HERE IN WORLD PRAYER

National Reform Association Sets Aside Sunday as Time For Simultaneous Service.

ON BEHALF OF FREE SCHOOLS

The Rev. J. B. Meacham and A. W. Jamieson of Presbyterian Selected Here.

Rushville churches are interested in the world wide prayer to be uttered for free schools in the pulpits all over the world Sunday. The National Reform Service, of which the Rev. A. W. Jamieson of the United Presbyterian church and the Rev. John B. Meacham of the First Presbyterian church are members, inaugurated the simultaneous prayer service.

All the world will pray for the public schools on September 8. From at least 2,500 pulpits in America and as many more in other countries a simultaneous prayer for free education will go up from millions of lips and the event will become an annual custom if the efforts of the National Reform Association prevail.

This universal prayer is a definite part of the tremendous movement which will culminate in the Second World's Christian Citizenship Conference to be held in Portland, Oregon June 29-July 6, 1913, which has been in the process of organization for nearly two years past.

Education generally and the public schools in particular loom up large in this work and many of the most prominent educators in the world will discuss the whole vast subject of education from the Portland platform.

September 8 has been selected as the date for this universal prayer because it precedes the opening of the public schools in the United States by only a few days, the Sunday schools are resuming in large attendance and the teachers of both are keyed up for their year's work and stand atune with the world and this simultaneous prayer is to bid all of them Godspeed in their work.

When discussing this vast and interesting undertaking Rev. Dr. James S. Martin, of Pittsburg, Pa., the man who has organized the world for this prayer said:

"How can the school year be better introduced than by prayer for the children and the youth of all nations who are seeking education?"

The magnitude of the moral and spiritual interests involved in this vast work of education or affected by it, commends this suggestion to all Christian citizens. For more than seventy years the Day of Prayer for Colleges has been observed by the Christian people interested in these institutions and incalculable results for good have been vouchsafed in answer to these prayers. But while the student world in the United States number not far from 200,000 persons, there are nearly seventeen millions in the common schools of the nation. For every student in our universities, colleges and professional schools there are eighty in our public schools. When we add the private schools, which, with certain classes, take the place of the public schools, we have before us an agency which gathers under its influence, with insignificant exceptions, the children of the whole people, which is steadily making its work more thorough and complete, and which is confessedly one of the strongest moulding forces at work upon the character of the nation.

What ought to be the bearing and effect of this great agency on the morals and religion of the people? This nation is, in important respects, a Christian nation. The education provided for her future citizens ought to correspond to the national character in this respect, and should aim to transmit that character to the coming generations. The supreme need of the nation is not for intelligent or mental culture in her citizens, important as these are, but that they shall be men and women of good moral character, able to distinguish the difference between right and wrong and resolved to do what is right and to avoid and resist what is wrong.

The chief end, therefore, of the schools to be held supreme above all mere intellectual culture, is to develop the moral nature of the pupils. If these positions are correct, it follows that my proposal to divorce education from the general, fundamental, unsectarian truths of religion, to make our education merely secular, and to absolve the teacher and the school from all responsibility except for the intellectual development of pupils is supervisive of the true American idea of education, and fatal to the chief interests for which our schools were established, and yet this bald secular theory of education is accepted in wide educational circles. Many cities and many whole states are moulding their school systems in accordance with it.

This very disagreement as to the nature and objects of education constitutes a grave peril to the schools. Those who believe in God, and in the efficacy of prayer, will agree with us that interests so momentous and so urgent as these ought, by a Christian people to be spread before the Hearer of Prayer."

AUTOS AND TRAIN WILL TAKE CROWD

Rushville Will Invade Newcastle Tomorrow For Ball Game With Auto Makers.

SPECIAL LEAVES AT 12:30

The special train over the L. E. & W. railway for the ball game at Newcastle tomorrow will leave here at 12:30 o'clock. It has been many years since the fans here have been "worked up" over a ball game as they are over this one. Besides the large crowd going on the special numerous auto parties are going and Rushville will be well represented.

As to the game it should be one of the best of the season. Newcastle has a strong team and the locals are well aware of their strength, but still believe Rushville will win. The game promises to be a battle royal and whichever team wins, they will know they have been in a game. Manager Maibaugh has not made known his choice of pitchers but it will be either Avery or Halterman. The rest of the line-up will remain the same.

SLAP IN THE FACE.

Newcastle Courier: William Dudley Foulke can rest assured of the sincere sympathy of all his political friends because of his failure to secure the nomination that he so greatly desired and keenly pursued. The action of the convention was a plain slap in the face.

RUSH COUNTY IN ON ALL THE RACES

Harrie Jones Finishes in Money in Two at State Fair and Local Green Trotter Performs.

PETER SIMMS IN FIRST RACE

Elmer Humes' Simmore Colt Finishes Third in First Race of His Life.

Harrie Jones, the Rushville trainer, won fourth money and second money in two of the three races on the last day's speed card at the State fair in Indianapolis yesterday. Katherine R., who could not get in the money at the Rush county fair by any means was a hot contender in the 2:12 trot yesterday, finished second the first and third heats and third the second heat.

Jones was fourth with Lady Patch, a daughter of Patchen Boy, in the 2:20 pace. She finished fifth the first heat and fourth the other two heats. Two of the heats were in 2:11½ and the other was in 2:13¼. Peter Simms, a green trotter owned by Elmer Humes of this city, finished third in the 2:12 trot.

The trot in which Katherine R won second and Ramey Constantine first, was the best race of the afternoon. The last heat of the trot was in 2:10. Ramey Constantine was out in front the first two heats, but Harrie Jones made a drive for the last heat and almost beat the Constantine colt out.

There were only four starters in the race, all but Ramey Constantine going to a break in the first heat before they reached the eighth pole. When they settled, they were scattered from the eighth to the quarter pole, and had not the driver of Ramey Constantine taken him back some on the back stretch, would have fallen behind the flag. Pretona Mc. was at the side of Ramey Constantine from the half of the second heat well into the stretch, where the former pulled away, placing about three lengths between them at the finish.

The exciting finish of the afternoon came in the third heat of this race. Pretona Mc. was at the wheel and side of Ramey Constantine all the way to the short distance flag, with Heliograph and Katherine R. trailing a length behind. As they came to the wire Harrie Jones made a whip drive for the heat, the drivers of Ramey Constantine and Pretona Mc also resorting to this kind of persuasion. All three finished in a bunch and all whipped out at the wire.

Peter Simms, a bay gelding by Simmore, owned by Elmer Humes of this city, went his first race at the State fair yesterday in a very creditable manner. He won third money in the 2:21 trot and his owner was very well satisfied with his exhibition of speed.

There were five classy starters in this event, all seasoned horses, and the fact that Peter Simms was able to finish in the money is very pleasing to his owner. The heats were in 2:11½, 2:12¼ and 2:12¾. The best heat Peter Simms trotted was in 2:11½, but he was not marked at that because he did not win a heat.

The Simmore colt has been trained all season over the State fair ground track by Mart Wilson, a trainer who is well known among Rushville horsemen.

Elmer Humes has another green horse, Charles Swy, a pacer, but he was not thought to be in proper condition to start in the State fair races. He has been a mile very fast. He is also being trained by Mart Wilson.

Fred Dagler won third money in the 2:17 trot at Dayton, Ohio, yesterday with Dr. Gambetta. The local driver's entry finished fourth twice, third the last heat and won the third heat. The heat he won was in 2:17¾. Dr. Gambetta did not do that well in the fair races here.

The State fair races this year held special interest for Rushville and Rush county people. There has been a local trainer on every day's card, and some days Rush county was represented in every race, either by a horse or a driver.
